TRANSPORTATION

Getting around can be challenging for a myriad of reasons. A key component for healthy living means getting to the doctor, community centers, grocery stores, and other places. Transportation resources within your own network may include friends, family, neighbors, and/or hired companions. In addition, there are public and private transportation services to explore.

Check with your medical insurance provider if they offer free or low-cost transportation to and from medical appointments.

The USC VHH Community Resource Center for Aging can help, contact us at 818-949-4033 or aging-resources@med.usc.edu. To learn more, visit: uscvhh.org
